CHARACTER OF PAPER. Mr. McRae prefaced his paper with a tribute to the memory of Judge Edward C. Burks, who, he said, had suggested to him his theme. The paper was a resume of the more important acts passed since the adoption of the Code affecting private rights and remedies and the ing private rights and remedies and the criminal law. In his treatment of the subject, Mr. McRae showed what the law was before the change, and pointed out wherein the change consisted, and adverted to the probable result of the new He referred to the decided cases law. He referred to the decided cases which threw light upon the law. He concluded by comparing English continental methods of securing accuracy in the statute law with the system of legisla-tion in force in Virginia, pointing out instances wherein the Virginia methods might be profitably altered.

LEGAL EDUCATION. Mr. J. L. Anderson (chairman) pre-sented the report of the Committee on Legal Education and Admission to the Bar. The report points out that from July 1, 1895, to July 1, 1895 (the day when the new law requiring candidates for admission to the bar to be examined by the judges of the Supreme Court of Appeals went into effect), there were 200 lawyers licensed to practice law. Since July 1, 1896, there have been only thirty-four applicants.

The report closes as follows: "Virginia has placed herself beside the other advanced States of the Union on the subject, both in the passage and the execu-tion of the law governing admission to the bar and in the improved and enlarged courses in her law shoods. upward tendency in legal education throughout the State will inevitably rethroughout the state with invested and will be instrumental in maintaining the purity, integrity, and ability of its members, and in preserving for it the confidence and esteem which it so richly de-

The Warden's suspicions were aroused by a peculiar noise coming from that portion of the institution where Campbell was confined, and also by the fact that an enort was evidently being made by several of the inmates to drawn the sound by their loud singing. Proceeding thither on tiptoe, Mr. McCuen peeped through the latticed iron door and saw Campbell busily at work cutting his way through the outer wall. He was aided by several other prisoners who shared the large cell with him, and the implement used was a large knife rudely fashioned into a saw. Considerable progress has been made in the work, and the Warden, realizing that in a few minutes more the men would make good their escape, and being afraid to enter the cell, drew a revolver and fired at Campbell. The bail took effect in the man's side, just above the hip, and he fell to the floor yelling with pain. This put an effectual stop to the proceedings. Assistance was summoned and Campbell's companions were separated and placed in close confinement. The wounded man was removed to the City Infirmary, where he received medical attention. He is not thought to be dangerously hurt. A general jail delivery would have occurred had Warden McCuen arrived a few moments later upon the scene. lose no time in serving their pub-

DWALE. VA., August 4.—(Special.)— William Fleming, a detective, of this place, has just returned from West Virginia in charge of a man answering the description of one John Holland, who is wanted at Knoxyille, Tenn., for murder.
Fleming located the man at Edgarton, W. Va., where he was working at a sawmill. The man stoutly protests his innocence, and declares that he is well able to prove that he is not the man wanted.
He was placed in Clintwood jail, where he will remain till Fleming can communicate with the Tennessee authorities and arrive at something more definite in regard to the matter.

The Walker Light Guard. Captain Frank Cunningham in command, attended the Forest-Hill vaudeville last night. There was also the largest crowd of the week present. While in camp at Ocean View the Walker Light Guard met the Metropolitan Three, who were spending the week there, and last night this favorite team was specially happy in their work, the comedian, Frank Colburt, referring humorously to Captain Frank and his crack company of soldier boys several times during their act.

The car service last night was good, and very few people left before the show closed. The management promises ample transportation facilities, and thus the annoyance to the many caused by a few who leave before the last act to get a car will be obviated. Jim Corbett will attend the show to-night upon invitation of Manager Leath. Forest Hill Vaudeville.
